PROFILE

Educator and technologist who leads with people first. Currently serving as Vice Principal at Spirit of Math Schools (Willowdale), where I support students in building real confidence in mathematics, coach teachers in their practice, and make sure no one falls through the cracks. I came up through software engineering at Centennial and spent time in production support at CIBC and pharmacy care at Loblaws — and what I found in every single one of those roles is that the technical part is rarely the hardest part. The hard part is communication: listening well, explaining clearly, staying calm when things go sideways, and following through until the problem is actually solved. I show up, I follow through, and I make sure no one gets left behind. I'm a Consul (ESFJ-A) — warm, organized, and genuinely invested in the people around me.
